A multichoice game describes an intermediate case in which each player may have a fixed number of activity levels. Part I of the book is devoted to the most developed model in the theory of cooperative games, that of a classical TU-game with crisp coalitions, which we refer to as crisp game along the book. It presents basic notions, solutions concepts and classes of cooperative crisp games in

The most widely studied model of cooperative games. Cooperative game theory suggests that a necessary condition for coalition formation is that the coalition is stable, in the sense that no members of the coalition have any incentive to walk away from it. The best-known solution concept formalizing this idea is the core. With respect to the second question, a solution concept known as the
